Architectural student qualifies with distinction

Michael Papps of BCM, an architectural and rural property specialist company in Sutton Scotney, and has excelled himself by gaining a distinction in the finals of the Foundation Degree in Science in Construction and Surveying through The University of Westminster.

He has been an outstanding student, gaining distinction in all his modules all the way through this demanding course, whilst holding down a full time job and he should be congratulated for this great achievement.

Michael came with a great track record in work experience prior to joining BCM, starting with qualifying as a tool-making engineer with six years experience, backed up with several years with Marvin & Partners drawing up land surveys and elevation drawings. He is also a qualified Autocad operator with two years operational knowledge, and having gained this degree, he now looks to be well on his way to his goal of becoming a professional architect.

James Fraser, Partner at BCM and Head of the Architectural Division, said “ We are delighted that Michael has done so well, particularly at a time when this department of BCM is so busy. It is a fitting tribute to his determination and hard work”

BCM is based at Sutton Scotney and can be contacted on 01962 763900
